

have no interest in doing so. We shall find our home in good condition, and we shall resume our life together there, and with the help of God-----"

" Yes, of God/' Frank added, " Who will not forsake us after having brought us all together again as by a miracle."

" Ah ! If only I could work a miracle ! " Jack exclaimed.

" What would you do, Mr. Jack f " the boat-swain enquired.

" To begin with," the young man replied, " I would jolly well make these rascals decamp before they tried to land on this island, many of them as there are."

" And then ? " Harry Gould asked*

" Then, captain, if they continued to infest our island with their presence, I would make either the Unicorn or another ship show its colours at the entrance to Deliverance Bay."

" But that would not be a miracle, Jack dear," Jenny said; " that is an event which will surely come to pass. One of these days we shall hear the guns saluting the new English colony/*

" Why, it is surprising that no ship has come already ! " Mr. Wolston agreed.
